Investigation continues into fatal house blaze

■ LIZZY BUCHAN

INQUIRIES are taking place into a fire which claimed the life of a woman.

More than 50 firefighters battled with flames which gutted a home in Gazeley Road, Kentford, just after 9am last Friday.

A woman's body was found by crews, and a man in his 60s was taken to West Suffolk Hospital for treatment of smoke inhalation.

He was discharged from the hospital on Saturday.

The site remained cordoned off over the weekend and bouquets of flowers bearing messages of condolence have been left outside the property.

A spokeswoman for Suffolk police said: "The body of a woman was found in the house. A post-mortem examination was carried out on Saturday morning but failed to establish the cause of death and further tests will be carried out.

"While the death remains unexplained, it is not being treated as suspicious at this time. Police are carrying out further inquiries on behalf of the coroner."

The police have not named the victims of the fire because, although next of kin have been informed, no formal identification has been carried out.

The cause of the fire is still under investigation by the fire service.

BIG FREEZE: Kevin Pallant, who is raising money for The Brooke animal charity by trekking 200km across Sweden

Icy trek set to boost animal charity funds

FREEZING temperatures are facing a stable worker who will travel 200km across northern Sweden to raise money for an animal charity.

Kevin Pallant, a secretary at Coach House Stables, in Chippenham, will make a five-day journey from Kiruna across the frozen wastes on a sled pulled by a team of huskies.

Before he sets off, Kevin and the other participants of the Charity Challenge Dog Sled trip will have to learn how to harness and drive the huskies.

He said: "Travelling over frozen lakes, through snow-covered forests and into the mountains with temperatures varying from -5 degrees to -45 will be a far cry from the humble fens."

Kevin will be raising funds for The Brooke, an international animal welfare organisation dedicated to improving the lives of working horses, donkeys and mules, in the poorest parts of the world.

After the trip he will give a presentation on March 8 from 7-9pm in Chippenham Village Hall, where he will share stories and pictures.

To sponsor Kevin go to www.justgiving.com/Kevin-Pallant, visit the stables, or contact him on 07711 402080.

Owners furious at verdict over hours

A TOWN centre bar has been refused permission to extend its licensing hours to 4am at weekends in a decision which owners have branded as "unbelievable".

Forest Heath District Council's licensing sub-committee rejected the bid by Unique, in Sun Lane, Newmarket, to sell booze until 3am on Thursdays and Sundays and until 4am on Fridays and Saturdays as the application was in breach of a council policy aimed at curbing late-night violence.

The cumulative impact policy (CIP) was introduced in January 2011 after councillors felt Newmarket had become saturated with late-night establishments.

A legal advisor for the district council said as the bar was within the CIP area then the sub-committee should refuse it unless licence holders could show the longer hours would not impact on safety within the town.

She said: "The sub-committee has considered the representations made today, including the additional conditions, but it doesn't consider this sufficient to show that the application would not have an adverse impact on crime and disorder."

The licensing team heard representations from the police and a local resident after planning authorities and Environmental Health withdrew their objections following discussions.

Andrew Evans, counsel for Punch Taverns which has the lease for the premises, said: "Up to four years ago, when Julian and Donna took over, this premises had a pretty rough reputation and they very quickly turned it around."

"It is as well run a premises as this committee will ever see."

Mr Evans said the couple had developed a very good relationship with the police and the later hours would help a more calm dispersal.

PC Gary Pinyoun, licensing officer for Suffolk Constabulary, said: "Unique is a unique premises in that we have a very good relationship with the management."

"If only we could have such a good relationship with other premises across the county then I would be very pleased."

He said the police felt obliged to object on the grounds on the cumulative impact policy but there were no great concerns about crime and disorder at the premises.

PC Pinyoun added: "However, while we realise people are coming out later, we do have to draw a line at some point."

Neighbour David Morley has raised an objection to the longer hours on the grounds of noise but said after a "constructive" meeting with owners he was less worried.

Unique will continue to operate within its normal hours, which are 1am on Thursdays, 3am on Fridays and Saturdays and 2am on Sundays.

It was granted permission to install a small bottle bar at the back of the premises, to act as a serving area when the beer garden was in use.

Speaking after the meeting, owner Julian Cunningham said: "We feel the decision is totally unfair and biased against us."

"We clearly demonstrated the bar has been run very well for the last four years and everyone, including the police, has said how happy they are with the way it was run. We fulfilled all of the obligations. This is unbelievable."

The bar owners have called for an explanation but have not yet decided whether they will appeal the decision.

Three raids in police appeal

CASH and food items have been stolen following three break-ins in Lakenheath on the same night.

Police are linking three raids which took place in the town on Monday, February 4.

Offenders forced entry into an insecure garage outside a home in Wings Road and made off with a number of food items between noon on February 3 and 8am the next day.

That night a female resident was disturbed by knocking at her door in Anchor Lane between midnight and 12.30am but no one was there when she answered it.

Damage was found to the door and window the next day where offenders had tried to break in.

And at 1.30am cash was stolen from a detached house in Wings Road following a break-in.

Anyone with information should call police on 101.

Man rescued by fire crews

A MAN was rescued from a smoke-filled house after a fire broke out.

A fire crew from Mildenhall was called to College Heath Road, Mildenhall, at 7.25am on Saturday and another crew from Newmarket was summoned when firefighters realised someone was inside.

A man was rescued and the fire was extinguished and the house ventilated by 8am.

Crews returned to their bases 30 minutes later.

Entries open for heath run

LACE up your trainers for a scenic 6km run.

Entries are open for the Newmarket Heath Run at 7.30pm on May 2.

The proceeds will go to Headway Cambridge, a charity that supports people suffering from brain injuries.

The run also includes the Stable and Stud Staff Challenge, for anyone working in the racing or bloodstock industry.

Go to www.newmarketjoggers.co.uk to enter.

Dishwasher started blaze

A DISHWASHER caught fire at a home in Burwell.

Fire crews were called to the kitchen blaze at 11.45pm on Saturday in Swaffham Road.

The cause of the fire was accidental, due to faulty equipment.

COURTSHIP RITUAL: the cranes at RSPB Lakenheath Fen. Picture: Andy Hay

'Dancing' birds at nature reserve

REGAL birds can be seen strutting their stuff at a nature reserve.

Visitors to RSPB Lakenheath Fen may catch a glimpse of two pairs of cranes enacting an elegant courtship ritual, where it appears like the birds are dancing.

The large breeding birds, which stand over a metre tall and have a wingspan of around two metres, have been living on the reserve for nearly six years.

David White, information officer at Lakenheath Fen, said: "Despite being such large birds, cranes are really good dancers."

"One of our volunteers once commented that it looked like they were doing the hokey cokey."

To catch a glimpse of the cranes in action, head to the reserve's Joist Fen viewpoint from now until early March. The reserve, located between Lakenheath and Hockwold, is open from dawn until dusk.

The visitor centre and toilets are open daily from 9am to 5pm. Parking is free for RSPB members while non-members pay a £2 facilities charge.

For more information call (01842) 863400 or e-mail lakenheath@rspb.org.uk.

EMERGENCY: firefighters attend the scene in Kentford on Friday; right, flowers left in tribute.

'It was like a firework going off'

A construction worker, who did not want to be named, witnessed the incident on Friday.

He said: "There was a lot of smoke.

"We saw the electric go off – it was like a firework.

"It was quite mad at the start, it must have taken at least an hour to get under control.

"The people in the office opposite were handing out fire extinguishers."

Another onlooker said: "My friend who lives nearby said all her power has gone.

"I saw the building – the place looks gutted."

A fire service spokesperson said crews were working with the Environment Agency to limit the impact of excess water on the surrounding area.

Anyone with information is asked to call police on 101.

Backlash over scheme to merge rural fire stations

PROPOSALS to merge two rural fire stations have been described as "disgusting" by a former firefighter.

Cambridgeshire Fire and Rescue Service agreed to shut Swaffham Bulbeck station and link the retained crew with Burwell at a meeting of the Cambridgeshire and Peterborough Fire Authority on Monday.

Fire chiefs have said the current Swaffham Bulbeck and Burwell fire stations were in poor condition and that Swaffham struggled to turn out its part-time firefighters.

However Brian Chalkin, who worked as a retained firefighter at Swaffham Bulbeck for 21 years, said the retained firefighters were not going out as they were not given the support they needed from senior officers.

Mr Chalkin, 56, of Soham, said: "They are being made into scapegoats. I just think it is disgusting.

"The station is there, the pumps are there and the boys are there but they haven't been given the management or the resources.

"The fire service had the money to keep the fire station maintained but they haven't managed it."

He said both stations were needed to cover the area as fire crews from Burwell were often called to Newmarket or

■ LIZZY BUCHAN

Soham so there is no extra cover for Cambridge.

Angry resident Brian Ambrose said the fire station in Swaffham Bulbeck was necessary in the area as firefighters from the village would struggle to get to Burwell quickly.

Mr Ambrose, 66, of Vicarage Close, said: "What a ridiculous statement to suggest you can get from Swaffham Bulbeck to Burwell in one minute.

"It is ridiculous unless you

I think it is quite disgraceful. It is quite clearly a cut to the frontline services want the firefighters to break all the rules."

– Cameron Matthews

He said there were a number of keen part-time volunteers in Swaffham Bulbeck but they needed support that was not available.

Mr Ambrose said: "It seems the fire brigade are letting them down."

Members of the Fire Brigades Union called for a strike after the meeting on Monday.

Cameron Matthews, county FBU chairman, said: "I think it is disgraceful. It is quite clearly a cut to the frontline services."

He claimed bosses had gone back on their word not to impose further cuts to frontline services after a £4.3 million savings package was approved.

However, deputy chief fire officer Chris Strickland said resources would be shifted to under utilised areas to where they could make a difference.

Six new rescue pumps, costing more than £1 million, will be introduced in Cambridge, Huntingdon, St Neots, Ely, Peterborough and Wisbech.

Mr Strickland said: "These proposals are about improving our ability to deliver a service and are not about cuts.

"We're not looking to save any money by implementing these changes.

"Instead we're ensuring that the service is providing the best service possible to taxpayers."

A mass meeting is due to be held on February 25 by the FBU to decide on further action, although the location of the meeting has not been decided.

Group set to decide turf legends

HORSERACING'S greatest stars could soon adorn the pavements of Newmarket.

A working group has been set up by the town council to deliver the Legends of the Turf commemorative paving project, aimed at cementing Newmarket's place as home of horseracing.

Paving slabs, similar to the Hollywood Walk of Fame, will be dotted around the town to honour trainers, jockeys and racehorses from Newmarket.

The name has been trademarked by the group, which includes representatives from the town council, Forest Heath District Council, The Jockey Club, Suffolk County Council and the public.

At a meeting of Newmarket leisure services committee on Monday, Cllr Keith Bovill, who is a member of the group, said: "It is very similar to the Walk of Fame they have in Brighton and Birmingham.

"The majority of the background work has been done. The next stage is to apply for funding from the Heritage Lottery Fund."

The project will cost £100,000 to deliver over five years, with ten paving stones planned for the first year and three per year for the next four years, which they hope to fund through a lottery grant.

The group hopes the project will make additional income through a Legends of the Turf historical booklet which will add value to the walk.

Nominations for the slabs will be agreed by a panel of people from the horseracing industry.

Wartime memories wanted

MEMORIES of wartime airfields are needed for a local heritage project.

Rich Soil Rich Heritage wants to hear from people who remember American, Polish and Belgian airmen based at a former RAF station at Snailwell and Americans based at RAF Bottisham.

The project would like to hear from anyone with information, photos or documents.

Hetti Wood, of Rich Soil Rich Heritage, said: "Our project will ensure these memories are preserved for future generations and these international influences on our local community are documented."

Oral history and archive research will be combined with drama and film to make up the project which aims to celebrate the history of migrant workers in East Cambridgeshire since the 17th century.

Public is given stake in forging town's future

■ LIZZY BUCHAN

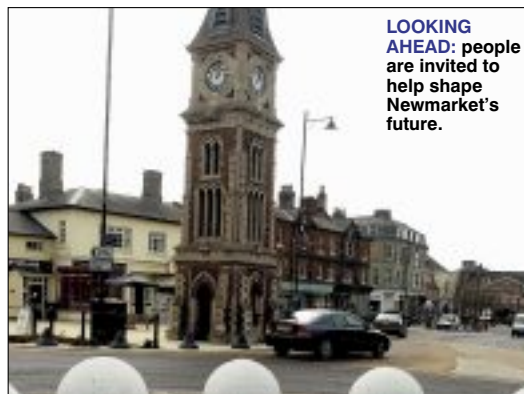

NEWMARKET is calling on the public to help shape its future.

Residents are invited to air their views at a workshop later this month.

The event will be run by the Prince's Foundation for Building Community, Forest Heath District Council, Newmarket Town Council and Suffolk County Council on February 25.

The Prince's Foundation works to promote sustainable development and to give people a greater say on their environment.

Cllr Rona Burt, cabinet member for planning and housing at Forest Heath, said: "It's never easy to balance the wishes of different sections of any community so we are hoping that people of all ages, abilities and interests will come along to make their voices heard."

LOOKING AHEAD: people are invited to help shape Newmarket's future.

"Only when we've heard from our Newmarket community as a whole can we begin to build the Newmarket of the future."

The town council has thrown its weight behind the bid as councillors hope this approach will help to regenerate the High Street as well as the rest of the town.

Cllr George Lambton, Newmarket town mayor, said: "Newmarket Town

Council believes passionately that community engagement is essential in the creation of truly sustainable communities.

"We will ensure that Newmarket continues to thrive and provide the amenities, jobs and facilities that are needed by our community, today and in the years to come."

There will be a public drop-in session on February 25 from 6pm to 8.30pm at the Memorial Hall, in High Street.

Key stakeholders have been invited to attend workshops on February 26 and 27, where the vision will be developed further.

A final public session will be held on February 28, from 6pm to 8.30pm, also at the Memorial Hall, to discuss their findings.

Cllr Lisa Chambers, Suffolk County Council's cabinet member for environment and property management, said: "It is really important that we involve as many people as possible in this process."

"We want this work to capture views from all groups and individuals who live in and around our town."

She added: "It is vital we are all involved in shaping our town's future for generations to come."

Frankel set to start career as stallion

A ROMANTIC Valentine's Day is in store for Frankel as he starts his career as a stallion.

The unbeaten racehorse will be visited by around 60 high-class mares at Banstead Manor Stud, near Cheveley, from tomorrow.

Some of the mares paying Frankel a visit include dams of European Classic winners, including Flirtation and Musical Treat.

Philip Mitchell, Juddmonte Farms general manager, said: "His book of mares is as one would hope and expect for 'the best racehorse ever'."

Frankel has settled in well at the stud farm where he was born, after retiring from racing in November.

Police make appeal to tackle burglaries

HOUSE burglaries have increased across Suffolk over the past week and police are urging the public to come forward.

Forty-two incidents have been recorded in the last seven days and officers are appealing for any information, no matter how small, to help them apprehend criminals.

Police have been working to tackle burglaries under Operation Drawbridge, a countywide initiative.

Householders are warned to protect their homes by fitting alarms, locking sheds and outdoor oil tanks and setting light timers to give the impression someone is home.

Police also advised people to plant thorny shrubs by fences to prevent people climbing over and to use gravel in the driveway so people approaching can be heard.

Anyone with information should call police on 101.

Half-term offers fun for everyone

YOUNGSTERS can enjoy a jam-packed half-term next week.

From hip hop dance to crafty collage making and indoor multi sports, there is something for everyone at Newmarket Leisure Centre.

Art Mania sessions will take place for 5 to 10-year-olds while Innovation Dance musical theatre workshops will give 7 to 14-year-olds to try out different dance moves.

Sports mad children and teenagers can get involved in turn up and play sessions in football, basketball, indoor hockey and more.

There will be a Valentine's themed skating session at the Dome Leisure Centre, in Mildenhall, as well as a cricket camp and other sports.

At Mildenhall Swimming Pool there will be £1 swims, crash courses for beginners aged 4 and over and special activities for toddlers.

There will be happy hours at all the centres where anyone can pick up a racket and play table tennis, badminton or squash for £1 an hour.

SUMMER DATE: The Saturdays are on their way to Newmarket. CP

Double bill of music 'not to be missed'

GIRL group The Saturdays will double up with British rockers Lawson for a stellar performance at Newmarket Racecourses this summer.

The double bill will be the first of the popular Newmarket Nights, held on June 8, the second day of racing on the July Course.

Since The Saturdays formed in 2007, the band has become a household name, with 11 top ten singles and three top ten albums.

Lawson made their mainstream breakthrough when supporting The Wanted on tour two years ago. They hit the big time in 2012 with three top ten singles and in the autumn they released their first album, Chapman Square.

Amy Starkey, regional director of Jockey Club Racecourses, said: "It's fantastic to be announcing a double bill of music for our first 'Summer Saturday Live' of 2013.

"The Saturdays and Lawson are really popular bands and our spectators will love them when they bring their infectious music to the July Course. It will be an occasion not to be missed."

Snap up your tickets while you can at www.newmarketracecourses.co.uk and or 0844 579 3010.

Tickets cost £29 for the Premier Enclosure, £21 for the Grandstand and Paddock and £15 for the Family Enclosure. Children aged 5 to 17 will pay £16, £15 and £12 respectively. All under 16s must be accompanied by an adult.

College aiming to move bid forward

NEWMARKET College could be a step closer to becoming an academy.

The governors voted two weeks ago to pursue academy status with educational charity CfBT Schools Trust, which supports 15 schools as sponsored academies, including Ely College.

Plans have been in the pipeline for more than two years to take the Exning Road school out of local authority control but the bid stalled in February 2012 due to poor results.

Principal Dr Bob Cadwalladr said: "I am very excited about what CfBT can bring to the college and our school improvement journey.

"I think that this is an opportunity to change the game and we can only get stronger with their support and resources.

"In the end we believe that CfBT will help us to become what we want and need to be - a good local school for all the young people of Newmarket."

Academy status would give the college freedom over their curriculum, staff pay and length of terms and school days while remaining funded by the state.

This means the same level of funding per student but more freedom to invest the money where it is needed.

Dr Cadwalladr said the governors had spent a great deal of time choosing the right partner and they hope to convert the school by July 1 at the latest.

He said: "We liked the way in which CfBT works with schools and helps them maintain their identity and links with their local community and partners.

"We visited Ely College and were very impressed at how CfBT had supported them in school improvement and at how they had 'walked the walk' of their rhetoric and values."

It is hoped CfBT will use its expertise to help Newmarket College to secure grants and extra funding which it would be entitled to if it became an academy.

Newmarket College has undergone an initial assessment by the CfBT before submitting an application to the Department for Education.

If the application is approved then the DFE will work with the college during the transition period.

A DFE spokeswoman said they do not discuss individual school applications.

Anna Crispin, director of CfBT Schools Trust said: "CfBT Schools Trust is aware that the governing body of Newmarket College has expressed an interest in becoming an academy and is currently in the early stages of discussion with the college regarding the possibility of joining CfBT's family of schools."

Fire service merger plan is called off

A MERGER between two fire services has fallen through as bosses found it would not cut costs as far as they thought.

Suffolk and Cambridgeshire Fire and Rescue Services have agreed to scrap the idea after detailed work had gone into working out the business case.

Their investigations found savings would not be as significant as first anticipated when compared against the transitional costs if the merger took place.

There were considerable differences in the level of reserves held by SFRS and CFRS and council tax for a band D property in Cambridgeshire was £11 higher than in Suffolk so equalising council tax would be problematic.

Fire chiefs said the 12-week public consultation was "inconclusive" as 49 per cent voted in favour and 41 per cent against.

Finally there was not enough assurance from the Department for Communities and Local Government that they would provide the support needed for the merger.

Cllr Colin Spence, cabinet member for public protection at Suffolk County Council, said: "I was clear from the outset that we would only continue with plans for a full merger at this time if it was the right thing to do for the people of Suffolk."

Why so hard to recruit nurses?

Sir, last Thursday was the last event for Cambridgeshire LINK at which we heard a presentation about delayed discharge from hospitals.

The day before we heard that Brookfields Hospital Cambridge would be readmitting patients after a period of time of not accepting patients due to a shortage of staff.

Last Thursday we had the announcement of the closure of Welney Ward in Ely, another facility for older people, due to a shortage of staff.

The public have been told by some people that thousands of nurses have lost their jobs, due to the changes in health service provision, so how come Cambridgeshire Community services are struggling to find nurses?

Why are services across Cambridgeshire struggling to fill positions both in nursing care and social care?

Cope resents the terms "bed blocking" or "delayed discharge", when so many vacancies are known to exist both in hospital care and social care for the elderly.

Pensioners agree with many of the proposals being introduced to enable people to be able to return to their own homes and cope for themselves, but the support must be made available before discharge takes place.

YEAR six pupils got a taste of student life with a visit to Anglia Ruskin University.

The youngsters from Laureate Primary School, in Newmarket, attended a Reach for the Stars event at the university last Wednesday, aimed at encouraging children to consider higher education.

Student ambassadors chatted to the children about university life before the class got a chance to explore the campus.

David Perkins, head teacher at Laureate, said: "I was contacted about it before Christmas and I thought it seemed like a great opportunity.

"They came back absolutely full of it, clutching goody bags and chattering away."

He added: "We felt we have a mixed group of children, some of whom come from quite difficult backgrounds, and we wanted to show them university is not an elite thing."

The children will have the opportunity to don robes and take part in a mini graduation ceremony later in the term.

■ DESPITE the chilly weather, a number of illnesses and frozen snow in the car park, which saw the chairman and assistant treasurer acting as escorts in case of difficulties on a slippery surface, members of the Beck Row Thursday Club turned up in good numbers for their fortnightly meeting in the Community Centre.

They were well rewarded for their support as they listened to the splendid talk, with examples from Tina Finbow on the title Cakes, Beautiful Cakes, a subject on which she has made herself quite an expert, as was shown with interesting details of the skills of cake making and confectionery.

In fact Ms Finbow, who had trained among other places at Comberton Village College, answered well over two dozen questions.

The club treasurer announced that Ms Finbow would not be taking the normal fee for the splendid talk but had asked that instead a donation be sent for the benefit of the East Anglia Air Ambulance – a decision which brought further warm applause.

■ BEREAVED children and young people will receive support from a hospice after a £5,000 donation. St Nicholas Hospice Care has received the generous grant from Santander Foundation's Community Plus initiative, which will go towards their Nicky's Way programme for bereaved youngsters.

The six-week Nicky's Way programme helps children and young people in West Suffolk who have lost loved ones by giving them the chance to share their worries and feelings with others in the same situation.

Groups of no more than six children can meet to talk and ask questions of adults and doctors, as well as enjoying trips out and creative pursuits.

Ben O'Hanlon, St Nicholas Hospice Care Trusts and Statutory Funding Officer, said: "This grant will make a big difference to bereaved children and young people and their families.

"We are grateful to Santander for supporting us."

The groups are run by staff and trained volunteers from the Driver escapes ban after hitting bridge

■ LIZZY BUCHAN

A LORRY driver avoided disqualification after crashing into Ely's low railway bridge – the most impact prone bridge in the UK.

John Allen, of Junction Road, Mildenhall, had been transporting hay bales in a HGV and trailer on November 14 last year when he hit the Station Road bridge on the A142.

The 51-year-old, who has been driving lorries for 30 years, previously pleaded guilty to driving the Volvo lorry without due care and attention and appeared for sentencing at Cambridge Magistrates' Court last Wednesday.

The charge stated he 'ignored warning signs indicating that the height of his vehicle was in excess of that able to pass under the bridge'.

Laura Mardell, prosecuting, said the father-of-four's lorry had been found by a police officer who was travelling in the area.

She said: "He told the officer that he regularly uses that route and is aware of the height of the vehicle. It was towing two trailers with bales of hay on its back."

Nicola Yates, mitigating, told magistrates Allen had a "lapse of concentration" and thought he was "driving his own car".

She said: "He demonstrated very skilful driving – what Mr Allen did was reverse out of a very tight spot with no trouble whatsoever. He would have also had to drive up to it very carefully because of the traffic calming measures. It was clearly a complete lapse of concentration."

Miss Yates added that if magistrates had chosen to disqualify him from driving it would have been "devastating" for his family.

Ron Broadbent, presiding magistrate, said: "Well Mr Allen, for a man who has been driving an HGV for 30 years it is really surprising that this has happened.

"We have the right to disqualify you today. However we don't want you to lose your job but you are probably aware that any lorries can cause death on the roads.

"You are driving a vehicle that can kill.

"I imagine that this court case and incident will never happen again in your life.

"We have decided that you will be given six penalty points. You have got one more chance.

"You also have a fine of £190, £70 costs and a £20 victim surcharge."

Church to screen films for charity

A FILM festival will take place for the first time at a church to raise money for a trip to Africa.

Burwell Baptist Church is raising money to send 11 young people to Zambia for a two-week trip later this year.

Sit back and enjoy six films about Africa, including Madagascar and the African Queen, at the church on February 22.

Nathan Shipley, youth worker at Burwell Baptist Church said: "We will be showing some fantastic films throughout the day.

"There's one from the golden age of Hollywood, a Disney double-bill and a modern-day classic.

"There really will be something for everyone."

Screenings will take place at 9.30am, noon, 2.30pm, 5pm, 7.30pm and 10pm. Filmgoers will be invited to make a contribution to the fundraising total.

The festival has been generously sponsored by Cambridge United FC, Waitrose Newmarket, ADeC, Little Green Radicals, Love Da Popcorn and Last Exit to Nowhere.

Mary honoured over outstanding service

■ LIZZY BUCHAN

A SELFLESS volunteer who has given more than half her life to others described it as "such fun".

Mary Bowers, 80, of New Cheveley Road, has been honoured for 60 years of service to the British Red Cross last week.

She said: "I was unwell at home when the story of Henri Dunant came on the radio. I was 19 and I thought this is what I want to do."

Fired up with determination Mary approached a friend who worked at the Red Cross branch, in Icwell Hill, who said she should come along.

One of her most distinct memories was seeing the Queen, then Her Royal Highness Princess Elizabeth of HONOURED: Mary Bowers pictured in 2002 when she represented Newmarket for the Queen's visit to Bury St Edmunds.

York, in June 1952.

Mary said: "She came to do an inspection of the Suffolk Red Cross in the Abbey Gardens in Bury St Edmunds."

"All I remember thinking was she was wearing a yellow coat and it was a bit crumpled at the back."

Mary finally had the chance to meet the Queen 56 years later, when she received an MBE in 2008 for her services.

The modest 80-year-old said she was a bit embarrassed by the award.

Over the years of service she helped to settle the influx of Ugandans who were moved into housing in Stradishall, now used as Highpoint Prison.

Mary also worked as a go-between for doctors at the tuberculosis centre at Newmarket Hospital and the Red Cross headquarters in Bury St Edmunds.

She added: "I am the main organiser in Newmarket. It is my baby."

Mary has no intention of taking a back seat as she said she plans to continue volunteering until she retires aged 85.

CHEQUE IT OUT: Tara Reeves, Julian Purr and Tracie Crascall from Dialight with St Nicholas Hospice Care corporate fundraiser Liz Spillane, second left.

Support in Fran's memory

GENEROUS staff at a Newmarket lighting firm have raised more than £700 in memory of a popular colleague.

Dialight, in Exning Road, decided to raise money for St Nicholas Hospice Care after sales customer service administrator Frances Emms died in September.

Frances worked for the firm for 10 years before being diagnosed with cancer in July.

She spent three weeks at St Nicholas Hospice during the last months of her life.

Moved by their loss, staff at the firm held a number of prize draws and raffles to raise the money.

Tracie Crascall, who worked with Fran, said: "Fran spent 10 years with us, from 1997-2008, and friendships were formed. We always kept in contact with her.

"As a firm we always fundraise throughout the year and then decide which charity to support.

"Everyone was in agreement that it would be fantastic to support the hospice because Fran was such a big part of Dialight. She had such a sense of humour.

Another colleague Julian Purr said: "Fran would always make you laugh. It sounds like a cliché but with her it was true – she lit the room up."

Liz Spillane, hospice corporate fundraiser, said: "Thank you to everyone at Dialight for thinking of the hospice when deciding which charity to support.

"We remember Fran well and the many visitors she had during her time at the hospice."

■ Our report last week on the donation by Dialight included the wrong picture which had been supplied in error.

She said: "It is very interesting. People don't realise how you go and meet so many different people.

"I have had to change a lot over the years as the service keeps changing and evolving so much it is incredible."

A Red Cross spokeswoman said: "Mary has volunteered sixty years of active service for the British Red Cross and is a highly valued member of the Newmarket group.

"Mary was Assistant Commandant of the Newmarket Branch from 1957-1973, Cadet officer from 1973-1983 and has been the organiser of the centre for the last thirty years.

"Mary has offered outstanding service and we cannot thank her enough.

"She embodies the British Red Cross philosophy – 'refusing to ignore people in crisis'."

Lunch to start season

SNAP up tickets for a prestigious lunch which marks the beginning of the racing season.

The QIPCO Guineas Festival preview lunch will be held on April 30 at 12.30pm at the Rowley Mile Racecourse, in Newmarket, in anticipation of the 1000 and 2000 Guineas races held on the first weekend of May.

Nick Luck, racing presenter from Channel 4, will be hosting a question and answer session at 12.30pm in the Millennium Suite and there will be an auction to raise money for the Newmarket July Festival Committee.

Mark Edmondson, chairman for the Newmarket July Festival committee, said: "This is a very exciting new edition to the QIPCO Guineas Festival build-up and an important part of our fundraising programme as the July Festival committee aims to support many good causes and charities in the Newmarket area."

Amy Starkey, regional director for the East at the Jockey Club, said the QIPCO Guineas Festival was hugely important for Newmarket Racecourses.

Tickets for the event cost £75 per head for a table of 10 or 12 guests.

Call Teresa Muller on (01638) 560556 or email tam@edmondsonhall.com to book tickets.

Help in bid for work

FIND out about apprenticeships on offer in the area at an open evening next week.

School leavers, parents, mature students and employers will be welcome to attend the meeting at West Suffolk College today from 6.30pm to 8.30pm.

Statistics released in January showed 990 people in West Suffolk started an apprenticeship in 2011/12.

Anyone aged over 16 can take up an apprenticeship and the training can be combined with paid work.

For those aged 19 to 24 years old the training is part subsidised.

The open evening will take place at the Bury St Edmunds campus, in Out Risbygate.

Building share bid to reduce council costs

PUBLIC facilities in Mildenhall could become a "one stop shop" as council bosses look to slash red tape.

Bosses at Forest Heath District Council have decided to investigate sharing buildings for the swimming pool, the Dome, the police station and the district council offices, with plans for involvement from schools and the health centre in the pipeline.

At a meeting of Forest Heath's cabinet last week, councillors voted to set up a working group to investigate options for a single site for the town's facilities.

Papers before the cabinet said: "It is the council's stated intention to achieve savings and improve collaboration with partners through the sharing of buildings, which is an aspiration also shared corporately by the county council and the police."

Forest Heath leader Cllr James Waters is leading the team and said he is "passionate" about the project.

Speaking to the News, Cllr Waters said: "We need to be doing things differently and while we are doing our shared services with St Edmundsbury Borough Council, which cuts costs and improves our structure, it doesn't stop there.

"We need to look at what we have around us and say the swimming pool is getting tired, the Dome is getting tired, the council offices are getting tired and the police station is getting tired.

"We need to say 'are these the right sites?'"

Cllr Waters, who represents Eriswell and The Rows, said the council was looking at taking a more business like approach.

He said: "We have all got less time and less money to do things and I think it would just cut through the red tape. In an ideal world it would be nice to have them all together."

The project is in the very early stages and the working group intends to get people around the table to see what their requirements are and get them to buy into the project.

He said: "Now it is getting down to the nitty gritty - looking at sites and what people want and getting that together."

Once progress had been made then a presentation would be made to the full council.

The district council hopes to engage a wider range of partners including the parish council, the health sector and voluntary organisations.

HOW HIGH? pupils at Fairstead House School practice for their charity skipping event. CP

Pupils jump to it for charity funds

PUPILS have laced up their trainers to practice for a charity skipping event.

The youngsters from Fairstead House School have hopped and skipped their way through the last few weeks in preparation for the British Heart Foundation Jump Off on February 22.

Seventy pupils aged 7 to 11 have taken part in the Jump Rope for Heart scheme where they tried out new skipping techniques and learnt about the importance of exercise and keeping their hearts healthy.

Shahn Woodyatt, PE

teacher at Fairstead House, said:

"Preparing for the Jump Off has given our pupils a reason to get active, not to mention have lots of fun.

"The Jump Rope for Heart scheme helps us encourage healthy habits, whilst creating a more active ethos in school.

"It's a fantastic event for the school, teachers and pupils."

If you would like to sponsor the pupils or find out more about the day please contact the school office on (01638) 662318 or email secretary@fairsteadhouse.co.uk.

'I could have been dying and now I feel so alive'

When Cambridge jewellery designer Harriet Kelsall began feeling tired and short of breath, she put it down to the stresses and strains of everyday life. But when she was diagnosed with a life-threatening heart condition – and told she needed surgery that day – she had no time to fear the worst. Just two months on, she told her story to LOUISE MARTIN.

WALKING around her converted barn show-room, bespoke jewellery designer Harriet Kelsall is a picture of health.

Enthusiastically chatting about her award-winning business, which she runs with husband Tim Alban, the mum of two is clearly passionate about what she does. In fact, Harriet is so full of life that if it wasn't for a very neat, pink scar running down her chest, you may not believe she underwent emergency open heart surgery just two months ago. "This is my first full day back and I just love it," she beams. "I feel 20 years younger and I'm not exaggerating."

When Harriet began feeling tired and short of breath last summer, she put it down to working too hard. "I thought I was just tired because I run a business and I've got two young kids," she explains. "I had no idea I was as ill as I turned out to be."

Born with a heart murmur,

Harriet, 41, was told she may need surgery in later life. "Lots of people have a heart murmur and mine was caused by a leaking mitral valve," she explains. "I was told only seven years ago that it was a very minor leak and that I might need surgery when I was 90, so I wasn't worried about it at all."

But last July, the jewellery designer, whose business is located on Cambridge's Green Street and in a converted barn in Weston, Hertfordshire, began feeling very unwell. "I was holding a children's jewellery making workshop at the school fete, at King's, where my son Thomas is at school, and all of a sudden this thing that had been happening a few times happened, which is where my heart would beat very fast to the extent where I felt I couldn't breathe. I started to notice a blackout happening around the edges of my eyes and I fainted."

Harriet was rushed to Addenbrooke's where a series of tests revealed the mitral valve leak had increased and that she would need surgery, possibly within the next two years.

By September, Harriet had experienced more of the scary episodes where her heart would beat dangerously fast. "I was worried about it happening when I was with the kids and then it did happen when it was just me with them," she remembers. "We were leaving for the school run and I started having one and I had to try to speak to my son, who's 7, to tell him he might have to call an ambulance, which is a horrible conversation to have to have. Luckily that one calmed down but it did make me think that things were getting significantly worse."

By October, Harriet's condition had declined further and she couldn't walk up the stairs without feeling very out of breath and in pain, or take her beloved walk through Cambridge. "My favourite time of the week is walking across Cambridge to the shop and I couldn't do it. I cross the river and come out on Trinity

NEW LEASE: Harriet says she feels better than she did 20 years ago 890521

Street and I just love it, I love Cambridge; and then I couldn't do that walk and that was a bit of an eye-opener for me, I knew things were a lot worse than they were a couple of months ago."

Aware that surgery needed to be undertaken sooner than originally expected, Harriet was given an appointment with Dr Francis Wells, a consultant surgeon at Papworth Hospital, who specialises in mitral valve reconstruction. "I was so lucky because he is probably the best valve surgeon in the world," says Harriet. "I still can't get over my luck of living in Cambridge, and being in front of this man on the National Health Service."

"He looked at all the test results and then told me his waiting list was eight months but that I would need to be seen sooner than that."

Expecting to be called for surgery weeks, maybe a month later, Harriet and Tim were shocked when they received a call from Dr Wells the next morning asking Harriet to come in for surgery, that day. "I said 'how long have I got?' and he said 'no time,'" remembers Harriet. "So I had to get there. I was on one phone trying to get my mum to come and look after the kids and Tim was on another cancelling my work. I had an appointment with the managing director of Warehouse and all these important things set up for that day and it all had to be cancelled."

Just a few hours later, on December 1, Harriet was being prepared for surgery. "I actually think I was incredibly lucky the way it happened because the reality of heart surgery is that it is full on and I didn't have time to think about that, I just had to get there. All I had time to focus on was 'are the kids going to be OK?' I couldn't even think 'what if I die?' I just didn't have time."

After five hours of intricate surgery, Harriet's mitral valve was repaired, but there was cause for concern when she experienced severe side effects to the pain relief and developed fluid on her lungs. "It was quite hard when I woke up because I had a tube down my throat, tubes coming out of my chest, pacemaker wires coming out of my flesh and I had a needle in my neck and wrist. I was in a terrible state and I remember not knowing where I was, or who I was. It was like I'd woken up in a film. It was bizarre."

Harriet responded well to treatment to remove the fluid on her lungs and three days after her life-saving heart surgery began to grow stronger. "I remember looking around me and thinking 'I feel better than I did before the surgery and that was only three days ago'. It didn't cross my mind before the surgery that I could die, but when I had that bad day with the fluid on the lungs I kept asking 'am I going to die?' and they were saying things like 'it's very hard to die at Papworth', which is true, but they didn't say 'no', so it was very frightening."

Just seven days after surgery, Harriet was allowed home. But instead of returning to her family home near Royston, she decided to stay with her parents while Tim looked after their young children: Thomas and 3-year-old Eleanor. "My daughter is full of bubbles and joy and as soon as I sit down she likes to jump on me, which is lovely, but she wasn't really old enough to understand that mummy's chest can't be jumped on at the moment, so I decided to stay with my mum and dad for a week and a half until I felt stronger."

During this time, Harriet's mum, Jane, persuaded her to write about her experience. "She convinced me it would be therapy," smiles Harriet. "I'm dyslexic and don't normally write very much but one day I started writing and I just couldn't stop. I wrote about everything I had been through, everything I had felt, everything I had thought, the bad days, the good days, how good it all was at Papworth and how brilliant the staff were."

"I wrote it all down like a maniac and by the end of it I felt really good and like that was going to allow me some closure on it, and to move on from it, instead of being in this weird sort of 'did that really happen?' shock mode."

Harriet is eternally grateful to the team at Papworth who, she says, not only saved her life through their expert skills and knowledge, but who aided her recovery through their team spirit. "I remember being at Papworth one night and hearing the nurses, just on their daily routines, saying 'oh, I'll get that for you' or 'I'm going down there, so I'll take that for you', and I remembered, although I didn't entirely know who I was at the time, that once I was like that with other people and that helped me to recover because I was able to recognise being in a team – and a good team – which is what it's like here."

Harriet has been told she will need no further treatment to her mitral valve and just two months since her life-saving operation she is feeling stronger and healthier every day.

"It's been an incredible, life-changing experience, to think I could have been dying and now I feel so alive. People use it as an expression but I honestly feel better now than I did 20 years ago."

"I feel so lucky to have been picked up by this amazing hospital system when I was and to have been so well looked after and, you know, I just had heart surgery, it's not going to be easy, but as heart surgery goes, it couldn't be better."

Consultation begins on housing for the future

RESIDENTS across East Cambridgeshire are to be consulted over plans to build thousands of new homes over the next two decades.

East Cambridgeshire District Council (ECDC) have drawn up a new blueprint to help shape the future growth of the district over the next 18 years.

The document, entitled the 'Local Plan', is replacing the 'East Cambridgeshire Core Strategy 2009' and will look at how much development should take place – and where and when.

The authority says the blueprint will be the main basis for making decisions on planning applications and that it seeks to ensure development in the district is sustainable.

A draft version of the Local Plan is now being put out to public consultation.

In the plan, the council is proposing to provide for the delivery of between 8,500 and 9,500 new homes and to achieve a minimum of 9,200 additional jobs – all by 2031.

The authority is also aiming to make available at least 172.27 hectares of employment land for business uses and at least an additional 1,984 square metres of convenience and 6,373 square metres of comparison retail floor space.

Cllr Peter Moakes, ECDC leader, is urging residents, businesses and organisations to take part in the consultation.

He said: "All our work leading up to this point has been through an innovative 'ground up' approach to development which helped to produce the 'Visions'.

"This involved the district council working in close partnership with parish and town councils to organise public consultations with every community in order to explore their local needs and priorities.

"We have now brought together all this work into the Local Plan for everyone to view, discuss and comment on. Your opinions and thoughts can help develop, change and strengthen the direction of our policy so please take the time to be involved in a document which will determine your future."

To see the draft Local Plan, call (01353) 665555, email ldf@eastcambs.gov.uk or visit www.eastcambs.gov.uk.

NEW FOAL: sketch by Chris Winch, artist in residence at The National Stud. CP

Gallery re-opens at stud

ART lovers can enjoy an array of equestrian paintings at an exhibition at The National Stud. Chris Winch, artist-in-residence at the stud, will exhibit watercolour sketches of newborn foals and other wildlife subjects on Saturday to mark the official re-opening of the studio gallery following redecoration.

Visitors can watch the Woodditton-based artist in action and enjoy a free glass of wine from 10am to 4pm.

Chris said: "The foals start being born in January and so spring is a great time to come to the National Stud.

"What is great is I can walk into the stud and there are horses everywhere. There is no shortage of material to paint."

Enjoy refreshments at the café or take a tour of the stud after perusing the exhibition.

Visit <http://chriswinch.blogspot.co.uk/> or call (01638) 730077.

Public exhibitions include:

- Friday at Swaffham Prior Village Hall, 4-7pm.
- Wednesday, February 20 at Isleham Village Hall, 4-7pm.
- Thursday, February 21 at Fordham's Victoria Hall, 2.30-6.30pm.

Paxton is named as chief constable

■ LIZZY BUCHAN

A NEW chief constable has been appointed for Suffolk.

Douglas Paxton, who has served in the force for 24 years, will take up the post on March 4 following the retirement of incumbent Chief Constable Simon Ash.

His appointment was announced last Friday by Police and Crime Commissioner (PCC) Tim Passmore, after careful scrutiny by the Police and Crime Panel.

Mr Passmore said: "I am very pleased to welcome Douglas Paxton as the next chief constable for Suffolk.

"Douglas impressed us with his sound knowledge of the county and all its different communities and businesses.

He added: "His innovative approach to policing and partnership working will be particularly important as we work more closely with partners to get the very best value for the council tax payer."

TOP OFFICER: Douglas Paxton, the new Chief Constable for Suffolk. CP

Mr Paxton joined Suffolk Constabulary in 1989 and served in the county for 12 years. He rose to the rank of superintendent before serving as deputy area commander for the west of Suffolk.

He moved to West Midlands Police in 2002 where he worked in Birmingham city centre. Most recently he was deputy chief constable of Staffordshire.

Mr Paxton said: "I feel very honoured and delighted to be returning to the force I joined as a new recruit 24 years ago.

"I share a strong affinity with Suffolk and its people having spent 12 very happy and formative years of my early career serving its communities."

He added: "I look forward to working with Commissioner Passmore and I'm determined to build on the positive legacy and leadership of Chief Constable Simon Ash to make Suffolk an even safer place to live, work and visit."

Temporary Deputy Chief Con Paul Marshall will become temporary chief constable for the two weeks between Simon Ash retiring next Monday and Douglas Paxton taking up the post on March 4.

SERVICING - GO FOR EXPERIENCE

Some motorists are still paying out hundreds of pounds in unnecessary garage bills because of mechanics' ignorance of auto electrical systems, according to a leading fleet management specialist who first highlighted the problem a few years ago.

Apparently, faced with faults involving the computer systems found in the latest models, some mechanics are adopting a 'repair by replacement' policy which can lead to a bill of more than £1,000 for a new engine control unit, when the fault may be a loose connection costing only a few pounds to repair.

It seems that a few cost-conscious garages are still shying away from sending their staff on essential training courses to put the situation right. In response, Fleet Management Services, the company that made the allegations, decided to send their own maintenance controllers on manufacturer-approved courses which will provide them with the knowledge to withhold authorisation for unnecessary work involving electronic equipment.

All of which is fine if your car happens to be leased through a company like Fleet Management Services. If you're a private owner, things are rather more difficult. Many motorists find that they are being 'blinded with science' when faced with huge bills for electronic replacements.

You glance down the invoice, accept that it 'had to be done' and reach for the chequebook. Bills run from £60-£300 for the replacement of an electronic ignition system, to £800 for a fuel injection computer to well over £1,000 for an engine control unit.

Don't think that you'll avoid the problem if you don't have a new car either as relatively modern models usually have on-board computers. As a result, mechanics have to diagnose faults in the many systems found in vehicles today.

Whatever garage you use, the manufacturer concerned will have offered them the necessary training on auto electronic diagnostic skills. Many garages, however, see these courses as low priority.

Even those that do send staff often send only one person. Unless you're fortunate enough to get him working on your car, the result could be that your faulty electronic part gets replaced rather than repaired - and you get the bill. The moral of the story? Ask whether your garage's workshop staff are properly trained in auto electronics before you book your car in. If you're not satisfied, go elsewhere.

Party animals

FOLLOWING a triumphant West End season, Mike Leigh's classic comedy Abigail's Party has come to Cambridge this week.

It's the 1970s: Donna Summer is playing on the stereo. Dishes of cheese and pineapple are on the coffee table... and the social soiree from hell is about to begin.

Beverly and her estate agent husband Laurence have invited new neighbours Tony and Ange, along with nervous divorcee Sue, who is twitzy about the party her 15-year-old daughter, Abigail, is throwing over the road. As Beverly plies the guests with alcohol, cigarettes, Demis Roussos and nibbles, this horribly compelling evening descends into drunkenness and debauchery.

Leigh's excruciating demolition job on the pretensions of suburban social climbers became an instant classic when it first appeared as a BBC Play For Today in 1977, and this revival by Lindsay Posner – who also directed the recent all-star revival of Noises Off at the Old Vic – has been described as “a triumphant production” (Observer) and “a night of continuous guilty pleasure” (Telegraph).

The current tour stars Hannah Waterman, best known for her role as tragic Laura Beale in EastEnders. Since making her dramatic exit from the show, she has performed extensively in theatre productions, including Carrie's War and Calendar Girls (West End). She is joined by Martin Marquez, most recently seen in the West End in Billy Elliot and currently appearing on the big screen in Les Misérables, Samuel James, Katie Lightfoot and Emily Raymond.

Leigh is one of Britain's most influential theatre and film directors. His numerous awards include a Bafta for Outstanding

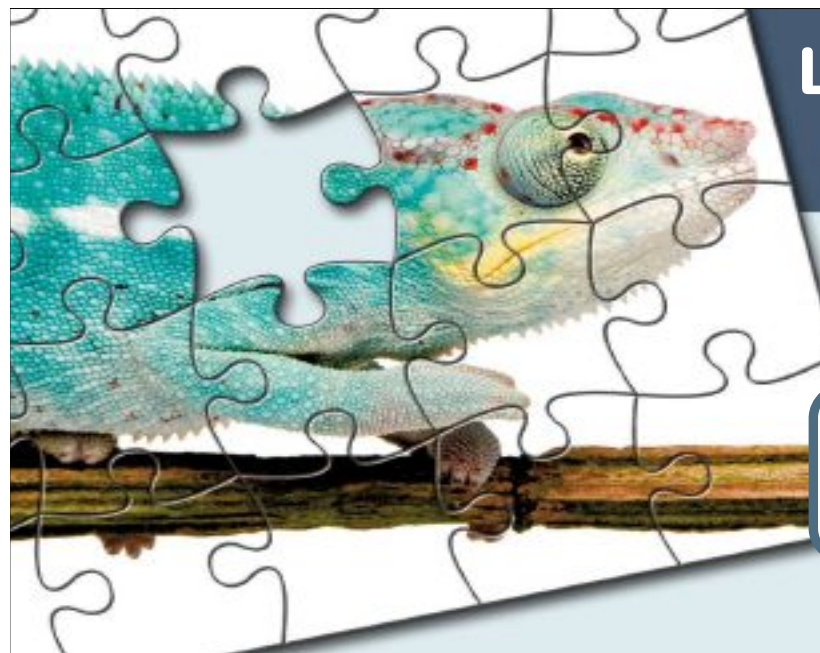

Contribution to Cinema, the National Society of Film Critics Award for Best Film for Life is Sweet, Best Director Award at Cannes Film Festival for Naked, the Palme d'Or at Cannes for Secrets and Lies and an Oscar for Topsy Turvy. His most recent play, Grief, visited Cambridge last year as part of a limited tour.

Jake's making music

The name Jake Bugg wouldn't have meant much to music fans a year ago. Now the teen, who plays Cambridge this month, counts his hero Noel Gallagher among his fans. He talks to The Guide about a remarkable start in the industry.

THE chain of events that has catapulted 18-year-old Jake Bugg to the top of the album charts all started with an episode of The Simpsons. Jake was aged just 12 when he was captivated by what he heard while watching the animated comedy series.

"It's all Don McLean's fault," he says, referring to the guest star in that particular episode. "I heard his song Vincent, and that started me off."

Fired with enthusiasm for music, Jake was given a guitar by his uncle. Two years later, after much practice in his bedroom, he started writing his own songs, some of which feature on his chart-topping album.

"For the first few years I was just learning covers, seeing what chords went with others and how songs went together, then I started writing myself," he explains.

Jake can't put his finger exactly on his musical influences, but says there was always music playing at home when he was growing up.

"Some of it was good, some of it was shocking. My mum was always listening to Take That or something that I hated. People seem to think I'm a massive Bob Dylan fan, but I've not really listened to him that much, and my parents never did. I know his first album and the famous tracks, like

IN TUNE: Jake Bugg plays the Corn Exchange later this month.

Subterranean Homesick Blues, but not much. It's a strange comparison."

A performance at Glastonbury in 2011 on the BBC's Introducing stage, where unsigned musicians can show off their skills, led to a recording contract with Mercury. Less than a year later, thanks to a performance on Later... With Jools Holland, Bugg had arrived.

"It was all pretty chaotic after that TV appearance," says Bugg, who is clearly still adjusting to his meteoric rise to fame. Several of his songs hark back to growing up on a housing estate in Clifton, Nottingham, with references to drug use, trouble with the police and generally getting up to no good in car parks on a Friday evening.

He smiles when it's mentioned, but says his beginnings were no more or less traumatic than anyone else's. "It's been massively exaggerated, I think," he says.

"It was no picnic, but it's not as bad as some people would have you believe. It's not easy living on a council estate, it has its bad points as well as good. A lot of my songs are about escaping those streets, but it's not just me, it's for anyone in a similar situation.

"My family wanted me to get a job after school, or carry on with education, but that's just life. You've got to be able to feed yourself, but it was my uncle who really pushed me to music. I thought it was better not to have the safety net of education or anything, because it'll keep motivating me to write better songs.

"But at the same time, I don't think an education would be a bad thing to fall back on. My mum was a singer so I think she's really pleased for me, doing what she wanted to do. I don't know how successful I'll be making my escape, but I don't think about that stuff too much. At the moment I'm just concentrating on performing and writing more songs, and we'll see where all this takes me."

So far, his songs have taken him all over Europe as Noel Gallagher's support on the European leg of his world tour.

Gallagher saw Jake's appearance on Later and decided he had to hear more. The ex-Oasis star trawled YouTube looking for more videos, and decided then and there that he wanted Jake to go on tour with him.

Gallagher recently talked of how he was blown away by Jake's natural talent. "He's from that naturally gifted school of musicians," he says.

"Jake picked up a guitar and virtually the next day comes out sounding like Donovan. I'm from the other side of things, where I have to graft and graft. It's annoying, but best of luck to him."

When the compliments from Gallagher are relayed to Jake, he seems embarrassed, saying: "Noel's an idol of mine, so to hear something like that blows me away. It's enough that he's even heard of me, let alone go out of his way to ask me on tour with him."

He wasn't really sure what to expect from the tour's opening dates. "I'd never been out of the UK before this year – and now I've been to Germany five times and France three times, plus loads of other places. It was incredible. We played 8,000-seat venues each night, and everyone came in to watch me. It's not like when you support someone in the UK and everyone's in the bar until the main act comes on. There was this one night in Italy, in Florence I think, where you could hear a pin drop as I was playing. Then, during one song, everyone just started applauding and cheering spontaneously. It was an amazing feeling."

Jake has recently toured the US and Canada with Gallagher and Snow Patrol before setting out on his own UK tour, which comes to Cambridge Corn Exchange this month. To cap a remarkable year, Jake's eponymous debut entered the album chart at No 1 after facing fierce competition from Leona Lewis's third album. "I didn't think my album would even get in the top 40, to be honest," he says.

"So to hear that I was battling Leona Lewis for No.1 was pretty mad. I couldn't really ask for any more."

CARRY ON, SERGEANT: live exhibits at The Imperial War Museum, Duxford.

War years come alive

THERE'S all manner of fun stuff happening at IWM Duxford this half-term until Sunday, February 24. Domestic types will love trying to guess what a whole host of mystery objects (from dolly tubs to mangles) were used for in a 1940s home, while wannabe spies can have a go at spelling out their name using a Morse code tapper.

Then they can find out all about the uniforms worn by military types – and even try some on – before meeting and chatting with one of Duxford's costumed characters, who range from a US paratrooper to a member of the Home Guard. Not only that, but there'll be plenty of craft activities to get stuck into as well.

IWM Duxford is open from 10am to 4pm during half-term, with activities running between 11am and 3pm. Everything is included in the admission price and, as usual, visitors aged 15 or under go free. See iwm.org.uk for more information.

The big film

THIS IS 40 certificate 15, 2h13m

SINCE the release of The 40-Year-Old Virgin in which Steve Carell famously had his chest waxed on camera, writer-director Judd Apatow has become synonymous with rumbustious yet touching comedies which explore the foibles of the human condition. Knocked Up refracted a traditional boy meets girl scenario through the prism of unexpected parenthood. Then Funny People reunited a beleaguered stand-up comedian with his estranged family in the shadow of terminal illness.

In This Is 40, Apatow revisits characters from Knocked Up to explore the reality of married life for a middle-aged couple who have lost that loving feeling. Pete (Paul Rudd) and Debbie (Leslie Mann) have raised two beautiful daughters – 13-year-old Sadie (Maude Apatow) and eight-year-old Charlotte (Iris Apatow) – but are now stuck in a rut. Sadie is going through a difficult phase, clashing with her parents about her addiction to her favourite television show. Meanwhile, precocious tyke Charlotte is upset by all of the screaming and shouting in the house. As Debbie goes into denial about turning 40 in the very same week that Pete celebrates the same milestone, husband and wife re-evaluate their stagnating marriage. They decide an emotional spring clean is in order, which has dramatic repercussions for Pete's cash-strapped father (Albert Brooks) and Debbie's employees (Megan Fox, Charlyne Yi) at her upscale clothing boutique, one of whom is dipping her polished nails into the till.

This Is 40 hopes to recapture the sentimental glory of Knocked Up but lightning doesn't strike twice, although it's close. Laughter and tears are weighted heavily in favour of the former with some very funny interludes.

However, the characters' various emotional crises scream out for resolution well before Apatow decides that he's had his fill. Rudd and Mann – Apatow's real-life wife – are an attractive pairing and scenes of them bickering are galvanised by wonderful on-screen chemistry and a sharp script. Casting Mann's daughters Iris and Maude adds to the realism of the dysfunctional on-screen family unit.

A scene-stealing cameo from Melissa McCarthy (Bridesmaids) delivers big laughs and Jason Segel and Chris O'Dowd catalyse an amusing rivalry for Fox's affections. Regrettably, brevity is not the soul of Apatow's wit. Where one snappy scene would suffice, the writer-director opts for protracted navel-gazing until we, like Pete and Debbie, begin to lose faith in the central relationship.

At an exhausting 133 minutes, the film could arguably be re-titled This Is 40 Minutes Too Long.

Leaf through top titles

IF YOU'RE still scratching your head as to what to do with your garden this year, whether trying veg in pots for the first time, creating a wildflower meadow or completely relandscaping your outdoor space, there are new books coming out which should provide you with plenty of ideas.

Here are just a few of the many gardening titles on offer this year.

■ The Drunken Botanist by Amy Stewart (Timber Press, £14.99, May 2) This intoxicating and eclectic new book on the hidden botany behind your favourite booze would make a fabulous gift for gardeners who enjoy a tipple. The quirky guide explains the chemistry and botanical history of more than 150 species, showing how they form the bases of our favourite cocktails and also offers 50 drink recipes.

■ Christine Walkden's No-Nonsense Container Gardening (Simon & Schuster, £20, February 28) She may now be a regular on The One Show and Radio 4's Question Time, but Christine Walkden is a gardener first and a presenter second. In her typical down-to-earth style, she shows you how to recycle tin cans, fruit crates and baskets and turn them into portable growing containers, grow your own lunch in a tub with dwarf varieties and cultivate abundant flowers for cutting and fragrance. Well illustrated and with tips from personal experience, this book will suit the fairly new gardener looking for new ideas.

■ Royal Horticultural Society Grow Your Own Crops In Pots by Kay Maguire (Mitchell Beazley, £16.99, available now) As growing your own fruit and veg continues to gain popularity, this book is one for people who perhaps don't have room for a vegetable plot or who simply want to have a go at growing produce in pots on the patio, close to the kitchen. Featuring everything from bags of potatoes to grapes on the vine, and delicious combinations such as tomato with basil, the book guides the reader through techniques and tips, as well as sound advice for growing each type of fruit and veg.

■ A Book Of Garden Wisdom by Jenny Hendy (Lorenz Books, £5.99, May 31) If you like to hark to days gone by and restore some traditional methods of gardening on your plot, this delightful book of folklore, organic gardening, hints and tips featuring traditional techniques for sowing, planting and harvesting, as well as age-old methods for controlling pests and diseases, feeding the soil and caring for tools, should fit the bill.

■ RHS Chelsea Flower Show: A Centenary Celebration by Brent Elliott (Frances Lincoln, £25, April 4) Chelsea Flower Show's centenary couldn't go without a commemorative book and this offering, by the RHS historian Brent Elliott, explores how the show evolved, how it has formed part of the social calendar and how it has reflected and shaped tastes in garden design and planting over the years. There are short pieces by significant nurserymen and nurserywomen, designers, organisers, visitors and patrons describing what Chelsea means to them, with chapters on the early shows, shows between the wars and decade by decade to the present day. It's illustrated with images mainly drawn from the RHS Lindley Library archives, many of which are published here for the first time.

■ Abundance: How To Store And Preserve Your Garden Produce by Alys Fowler (Kyle Books, £16.99, June 1) If you're growing fruit and veg then you may want to learn how to preserve it. Look no further than this guide from the former Gardeners' World presenter, who covers everything from drying and pickling to cold stores and fermenting.

■ Wild Flowers by Carol Klein (BBC Books, £20, February 28) Master plantswoman and Gardeners' World presenter Carol Klein celebrates the most exquisite flora growing wild in our woodlands, hedgerows, meadows and moors in this book and then returns to her own garden to see their cultivated cousins. This tie-in book sees Klein delving into the story of more than 30 of her favourite wild flowers, and sharing her practical expertise and suggestions on how to help their cultivated equivalents thrive.

■ The Rurbanite by Alex Mitchell (Kyle Books, £16.99, March 1) Do you live in the city but dream of keeping chickens? Do you look at derelict patches of ground on your way to work and see their potential as vegetable patches? If so, you're a rurbanite. You have a passion for the countryside but no intention of leaving the city. Don't worry, you're not alone. You're part of a growing band of people who want the best of both worlds. The author shares her passion, practical projects and incredible stories from seed bombers, rooftop beekeepers, guerrilla gardeners and urban farmers to inspire you to be in touch with your green side and change the cityscape for the better.

COVER STORIES: just three of the titles that can provide great tips for gardeners.

Each number in the Cross Code grid represents a different letter of the alphabet. You have three letters in the control grid to start you off. Enter them in the appropriate squares in the main grid, then use your knowledge of words to work out which letters should go in the missing squares.

As you get the letters, fill in other squares with the same number in the main grid and control grid. Check off the alphabetical list of letters as you identify them.

SPOT CHECK

Can you place the six dominoes (right) into the grid below in such a way that the number of spots in all four rows across and all four rows down totals the same?

PATHWORDS

Starting from the central shaded letter, move one letter at a time (up, down, right or left, but not diagonally) to find 11 types of prepared fish.

SIGNWORD

In this crossword the clues are printed in what would normally be the 'black' squares. Follow the signs from each clue to find where the word should fit.

CON TRICK

In this crossword we have removed all the vowels and just left the consonants. Can you fill in the gaps, using only the five vowels (A, E, I, O, U) to complete the grid?

COMMON LINK

The answers to the following five questions contain a word or words which have a common theme. Can you find the link?

1. What electrical device was patented by Samuel Morse in 1837 to send messages across America?
2. What name is given to the planet Venus when it is prominent in the western sky shortly after sunset?
3. What was the title of Bob Dylan's first top ten hit which went to No 9 in the UK charts in March 1965?
4. Which dinghy, designed in 1962 as a self-build kit, became the most popular sailing boat in the UK?
5. What was the role of the character Clarence Odbody in the 1946 film It's A Wonderful Life?

MISSING LINK

Each pair of words has a missing word between them that acts as a link to both (e.g. FRONT - DOOR - MAT). The initial letters of the six answers (reading downwards) will spell out a metal.

Ivor Searle Limited is the UK's largest independent producer/supplier of remanufactured engines, cylinder heads, gearboxes and turbochargers.

STOREPERSON

Due to expansion within the Company, a position has become available within our busy procurement team for an additional Storeperson with stores or warehouse experience.

Key responsibilities will be to:

- work within a team to provide a high level of parts service to internal departments;
- order parts from a number of suppliers to maintain stock levels;
- carry out purchase order processing using our Sage 200 system;
- receive goods in, check against delivery notes and enter into stock;
- be involved in regular spot checks on various product stock levels and the annual stock count;
- carry out various administration duties.

Ideally the successful candidate will:

- have stores or warehouse experience;
- have excellent communication, organisational and customer service skills;
- possess a positive attitude and display the ability to identify solutions to problems;
- be IT literate and ideally have experience of using Microsoft Office (Word/Excel/Outlook).

ENGINE ASSEMBLY DEPARTMENT

We require another team member in engine assembly to assemble a range of both petrol and diesel remanufactured engines. The successful candidate will be assembling 1, 2 or 4 engines simultaneously to specification.

We are seeking individuals with a keen interest/knowledge of engines either through experience in the motor trade, agricultural plant, general plant, motor sport, etc.

TURBO SUPERVISOR

A vacancy has arisen for a Turbo Supervisor within our newly formed turbo department. Duties will be:

- to supervise a team of turbo remanufacturing operatives;
- to ensure products adhere to quality standards;
- budget control;
- turbo production planning;
- turbo stock control using our Sage 200 accounts system;
- to order parts and carry out general administration.

We are seeking an individual who has knowledge and experience of turbochargers for car and light commercial vehicles. The successful candidate must have:

- knowledge in all aspects of turbo remanufacture;
- proven supervisory experience;
- excellent communication and strong organisational skills;
- possess a positive attitude and display the ability to identify solutions to problems;
- computer literacy skills.

TURBO REMANUFACTURING DEPARTMENT

We require an additional operative to join our turbo remanufacturing team.

Duties will be to strip, inspect, clean, reassemble and pick components for turbos whilst working to build plans and schedules.

Ideally the successful candidate will have previous experience of engineering, machining and/or engine work, possess a positive attitude and display the ability to identify solutions to problems. Training will be provided for this role. We offer competitive pay packages for all of the above roles and also provide free on site parking.

If you enjoy a busy working environment, and are excited about the prospect of joining a long established company within the aftermarket industry, then please send a cover letter and your CV to:

Godolphin is a major horse racing team based at two prestigious estates in Newmarket and this is an excellent opportunity to join a major player in the racing industry, in return for a competitive salary and attractive benefits package.

TRAINEE ACCOUNTS ASSISTANT

Interested in developing a career in Finance? We are seeking to recruit a highly numerate individual to join our small Finance team in the position of Trainee Accounts Assistant.

Reporting to the Management Accountant, this is an entry level position performing the role of Junior to the Finance team. This is a wonderful opportunity for anyone starting out in their career within Finance and wishing to learn the job from the foundation level.

The main duties will include, opening and sorting the post; matching invoices to orders and delivery notes; verification of invoices; updating the invoice register; checking statements; filing; writing cheques; logging receipts and preparing invoices for distribution.

This is an ideal role for an enthusiastic individual with a basic knowledge of accounts, who is ideally studying towards an AAT qualification. A good working knowledge of MS Office, particularly with Excel spreadsheets is essential to the role, as is the ability to communicate effectively, both verbally and in writing at all levels. In addition, you will have excellent attention to detail, be proactive in your approach to your work and comfortable working independently or as part of a team.

ESTATE GARDENER

Reporting to the Head Gardener, you will be an experienced gardener and a member of a team responsible for maintaining the Company gardens and lawns, at two sites in Newmarket. Duties will include grass cutting, hedge cutting, hoeing, planting of flower beds and the pruning of shrubs and trees, plus other associated work to ensure the gardens are pristine at all times. During the winter months, you will also be required to assist with general estate maintenance work.

You will have relevant estate gardening experience with a good knowledge of plant care and a desire to work to high standards. You will also need to be flexible in your approach to your duties in order to meet the demands of the Equine teams. Experience with ride-on mowers and tractors is essential.

CATERING MANAGER

Reporting to the Staff Support Manager, the successful candidate will be responsible for the management of a team of three shifts of Catering staff and the provision of three meals and snacks for up to 550 employees, every day of the year. They will also ensure the kitchens run cost-effectively and efficiently and to the high standards of Health and Safety required.

Although they are not required to cook on a regular basis, the successful candidate will have previous experience of cooking authentic Asian dishes of Indian and Pakistani origin, along with an awareness of the cultural needs of Asian staff - the ability to speak English and Urdu is essential.

A flexible approach to working hours will be required, along with excellent communication skills and the confidence to deal with people at all levels. Experience in budget management, team leadership, planning and negotiation skills are all essential. Computer literacy (MS Office) and a driving licence are also required and experience in a large commercial catering management environment would be an advantage.

If you are interested in applying for one of these positions, please send your CV and a covering letter giving details of your current salary and notice period to: Miss Katie Butler, Godolphin Management Company Limited, Snailwell Road, Newmarket, Suffolk, CB8 7YE or kbutler@godolphin.com

Closing date for applications: Friday 1st March 2013

College back to try again

NEWMARKET College's under-13 team will be aiming to take another step forward at next year's Suffolk Athletics Championships. They finished fourth in the county finals at Stowmarket Leisure Centre, but were able to report that the Year 7 girls will be able to compete again next year. They qualified for the finals after winning the West Suffolk final against IES Breckland, Mildenhall College and Samuel Ward. The boys' team finished fourth. From there, the Newmarket College girls went on to Stowmarket a week later and a team spokesman said: "We competed against Westley Middle, Stowmarket Middle, Benjamin Britten High, Farlingaye High, Bungay, Copleston High and Great Cornard. "We made a few changes to our starting line-up and performed really well. There were some really good teams competing but we managed to come fourth – only two points behind the third place team. "But the Year 7 girls will be able to compete again next year and the girls would like to say a big thank you to Mrs Major and Jemima Gedny for escorting us to the finals and being great coaches."

► Cycling

Towler puts elders in their place . . .

FIFTEEN-year-old Jake Towler continued where he left off last season when the Mildenhall club started their 12-round off-road championship.

He cruised comfortably around six laps of the figure-of-eight course – two more than his nearest rival Calum Mitchell-Fuller in the Under-18s section in the allotted 30 minutes – and then continued for a further four to beat all but one of the men in their 40-minute contest as officials decided to run all the categories in one race because of the bitterly cold wind and rain. However, because of Towler's age, he can only earn points in the under-18 section, but the fact he beat several more experienced men merely underlines the strength and speed of the teenager.

Mandy Burchett was the fastest in the women's category – she also raced until the end of the event – with Lee Woodcock winning the men's category in 10 laps.

Under-18: 1 Jake Towler (6 laps), 2 Calum Mitchell-Fuller (5 laps), 3 Alexander Robb (5), 4 Ryan Skeats (4), 5 Francis Robb (4), 6 Grace Towler (4).

Women – 1 Mandy Burchett (5 laps), 2 Diane Mantle (5), 3 Jean Poole (4), 4 Judith Robb (4), 5 Ann Williamson (3), 6 Viv Bowers (3).

Over 18 – 1 Lee Woodcock (10 laps), 2 Jake Towler (10), 2 Pete Clements (10), 3 David Robb (9), 4 Alan Towler (9), 5 Harvey Wright (8), 6 Dave Bowers (8), 7 Max Dorling (8), 8 Mark Burchett (8), 9 Martin Skeats (8), 10 Steve Mitchell (dnf).

■ The club's annual lunch and prize presentation is at West Row village hall on Sunday (1pm). Any members who have not reserved their place yet should contact Dave Bowers (dave@mildenhallcc.org.uk)

Jockeys through as Luke twists knife

Newmarket Tn 2 Halstead Tn 1 (after extra time)

THURLOW NUNN LEAGUE DIVISION ONE CUP

NEWMARKET advanced to the last four of the Knockout Cup despite having two men sent off against Halstead.

Aaron Maskell was shown a straight red card in the second half for a professional foul, which the Jockeys felt was harsh, and James Lane received a second yellow card in extra time.

But the hosts went through as Lane's deflected effort made it 1-1 in normal time, before Luke Butcher netted from a Ricky Cornish corner in extra time.

"We probably deserved it overall, but Halstead certainly did well," said the Jockeys' joint-manager Kevin Grainger.

Newmarket, whose trip to Whitton was called off again last night (Tuesday), are due to return to league action on Saturday when they make the short trip to face

THURLOW NUNN LEAGUE, PREMIER DIVISION

ANDREW Wood's second-half strike was enough to earn Mildenhall victory at Wivenhoe and keep them at the Premier Division summit.

The only goal of the game came in the 65th minute, with Dave Cooper splitting the defence with a good ball and Wood curling past the goalkeeper.

Manager Christian Appleford, who named himself on the bench along with two 16-year-olds because of injury problems, was glad to come away with the win in difficult circumstances.

"It was disappointing we didn't score more goals, but it was good we battled through," said Appleford.

Parry double springs shock

Ipswich YM 22 Newmarket 34
GREENE KING IPA EASTERN COUNTIES
LEAGUE, DIVISION ONE

JOSH Parry grabbed two touchdowns as Newmarket ripped up the form book at Ipswich.

The home side started in the form which had earned them seven straight wins in the league, going 10-0 up in 15 minutes, and it remained that way at half time with some good cover defence from Newmarket, who had been without a game for three weeks.

Captain Liam Cocks scythed through from first-phase ball to touch down and convert the first score of the second half.

Cocks kicked a penalty to level matters, and Newmarket went in front as the forwards' efforts were rewarded with a try for Pat Kearney. Cocks converted.

Ipswich got an unconverted try against the run of play, but

TWO TRIES: Josh Parry

Newmarket were undeterred and their continued composure led to Parry getting his 14th and 15th tries of the season, with Kearney's conversion making it 29-15.

A grubber kick from Cocks saw Alasdair Davey get the fifth try with two minutes to play, and Ipswich earned a bonus point with a late converted effort.

UNDER-NINE

NEWMARKET conquered wet and muddy conditions at Huntingdon to record comprehensive victories in their first competitive fixture since early December.

The Blacks opened with a 45-20 success against Stags A, racing to a three-try advantage in the opening minutes, Casey Feehan scoring two of them – the first from a superb passing move. Edward Newton added the third before Huntingdon shook off their lethargy and got on the scoresheet.

A long-range try from Riley Palmer restored Newmarket's advantage before their defence started to let them down and they went into half time 25-15, Newton getting their fifth touchdown.

The visitors turned the screw in the second half and further tries from Feehan, Newton (2) and Tyler Parmar-Andrews wrapped it up. The second match, between Stags B and the Greens, was totally one-sided with the Newmarket side romping to an 80-5 success.

Isaac Dear led the way with five tries and Archie Morgan (3) and Harrison Barrett (4) were also among the scorers.

UNDER-10

CHARLIE Palmer and George Franklin provided the spearhead as Newmarket had the upper-hand in their series at Huntingdon.

Both scored five tries, new recruit Palmer having a storming morning while Franklin showed searing pace and lived up to his nickname of

It's a Greens party as Newmarket KO Stags

Frankel. They won the opening game 35-0, Franklin scoring four with Gabe Jones, Harry Cooper and George Howard completing the scoring. Sam Skingley made a superb try-saving tackle to prevent Huntingdon getting on the scoresheet, while throughout the four games Howard, Cooper, Harry Ansell and Hayden Stannard defended well.

The front row – Archie Parker-Furze, Jake Clifton, William Daunt – dominated the scrum while Ethan Mappedoram, Jones, Luke Nelmes, Fabian Dodds and Peter Lonsdale proved a major headache for the home side, with Jonathan Rees, Rhys Porter and Sam Bailey giving excellent support.

They only suffered one defeat – in the second game where Nelmes, Palmer (2) and Lonsdale scored in a 25-20 reverse.

After that it was business as normal with two 20-0 successes, Howard, Nelmes, Lonsdale and Stannard scoring in the third game and Palmer (3) and Franklin wrapping up the fourth.

UNDER-11

SHELFORD broke through a static Newmarket defence to open the scoring at the Davey Field. However, the visitors – who completed a 40-0 demolition of Ely the previous week – got into their stride as the forwards got to work, prop Myles Wilson continually breaking the gain line.

They eventually got their reward after a break down the blind side of a ruck by Carter Wilder.

In worsening conditions, Newmarket started to over-run the tiring Shelford defence, passing the ball swiftly through hands to build pressure. The winning try came from Sam Gibson, put in after Wilder picked up a loose pass, to make it 10-5.

UNDER-14

A SPIRITED second-half fightback helped Newmarket claw their way to a 17-17 draw against Biggleswade.

They were caught flat-footed in the first half, shipping three tries before Ed Fletcher, brought on just before the break, started to make a difference with his pace and determination.

Ewan Kingdon impressed, driving over twice in the second half as Newmarket raised their game, and Luke Healy equalised following a superb run from the halfway line.

Thomas Macrae added a conversion while Adam Tallack was named man of the match for another outstanding all-round performance.

Hockey

Town plough on

Newmarket Tn 5 Rutland 1
EAST MEN'S LEAGUE, DIVISION 3NW

NEWMARKET had to survive a tough opening 20 minutes against a talented young side before asserting their authority.

The visitors played an extra man in midfield, over-running Town's quartet of Ollie Wade, Alex Andreou, Chris Leggett and Josh Dawson, but the experienced back line of Will Wilson, Simon Harrington, Jordan Newnes and Dave Worrall remained compact.

Keeping possession was also an issue for Newmarket and it was only when Newnes began to mark his man out of the game and the outstanding Harrington moved out of the back to bolster midfield, that the situation changed.

Two goals in rapid succession just before the interval gave Town the impetus to keep their bid for a third successive title on course.

The ice-breaker was a stunning team goal, Wilson winning possession and playing down the line to Wade. He fired a pass to the recalled Mark Pears and he drew the last defender before putting Leggett through and he lifted a shot over the advancing keeper. Rutland looked stunned and Pears capitalised with a reverse-stick shot which rattled against the far stanchion.

Chris Routs ensured the lead remained intact with a smart reaction save, but with Rutland continuing to over-commit going forward in the second half, Town were able to pick them off.

Their third goal came from another free-flowing move involving Bell, Wade and Mike Skelton, who drew the keeper and squared to Pears to tap into an open net.

The fourth came from a slick penalty corner move – Leggett scoring a well-deserved second – and Skelton added a fifth. But for some inspired goalkeeping and a comical miss from Dawson the tally would have been higher.

Rutland's late consolation followed a penalty corner, Routs saving the initial strike which bounced of the post into the path of a Rutland player who forced it home from an angle.

Wisbech II 1 Newmarket Tn 1
CAMBS WOMEN'S LEAGUE, PREMIER DIVISION

A DRAW in the re-arranged top-of-the-table clash has knocked Newmarket off top spot.

They are a point behind

Rutland, who took maximum points from a re-arranged game, and are ahead of Wisbech on goal difference with the leading three all having six games left.

It means Town are anxious to not to let any points slip, and that was reflected in the urgency and speed of Saturday's game.

Wisbech were sharp in the first half, launching fast raids which forced Louise Downs, Jasmine Wombwell and Zoe Bailey to help out the defence.

However, Town were not without their chances, Beth Wombwell foiled twice by the home keeper as Hayley Stoneman and Claire McDonnell drove the ball forward after breaking up play.

After a goalless first half both teams were fired up after the interval and were warned by the umpires to calm down. Soon after Wisbech took the lead, but a superb move involving Kerry Alderson and McDonnell led to Thomas pouncing to equalise.

The home side continued to cause anxious moments – despite Town having the majority of the possession – and goalkeeper Jade Atkinson kept her side in the game.

Huff happy after Aussie outing

ROB Huff made an impressive debut at the Liqui Moly Bathurst 12 Hours in Australia, battling to eighth place at the Mount Panorama Circuit.

Driving for the Peter Conroy Motorsport team, the World Touring Car champion (above) took the first and last stints behind the wheel of the Audi R8 LMS and impressed in both, despite the challenging conditions.

A problem with the car's temperature and a radio fault threatened to hamper the team's progress, but Huff and co-drivers Peter Conroy – owner of the team – and James Winslow ensured the car came home in a respectable position.

"It's been a fantastic experience and I'll never forget it," said Newmarket driver Huff. "There was such a great feeling of satisfaction as we finished the race, because we didn't have it easy by any means."

Huff qualified in 15th position but wasted little time in moving through the field, gaining places off the line and latching on to the back of the leading pack. He eventually completed his two-hour stint in an impressive fifth place before handing over to Conroy.

He maintained the team's top-10 position, but just 30 minutes after 2012 Australian Formula 3 champion Winslow took over, the car's temperature began to cause concern.

Radio contact was then lost at the five-hour mark but the team battled on and during his final stint on the 6.4km circuit, Huff then had to cope with heavy rain with just 90 minutes of the race remaining.

Huff kept his cool in treacherous conditions and gained two places to take the chequered flag in eighth place. His car was the third Audi R8 LMS to cross the line, but the first of those without the Ultra upgrade.

"The team and drivers did a brilliant job throughout the weekend and I'd be disappointed if I wasn't to race here again," he added. "It's such a brilliant circuit and the fans were so welcoming here."

We'll tell you soon, say City as Jockeys try to plan

NEWMARKET Town are due to hear later this week whether Cambridge City will be moving in with them next season.

Jockeys vice-chairman and joint-manager Kevin Grainger has urged City to let them know as soon as possible because work costing more than £10,000 needs to be done to get the Town Ground up to Evo-Stik League Southern standard.

City's Pro-Edge Stadium ground is scheduled to be redeveloped for housing – the plans for 138 properties were given the go-ahead by Cambridge City Council planners last week – and the clubs had agreed a groundshare plan in February 2010.

But that is due to expire and Newmarket are keen to find out where they stand.

"I've not heard from them – not a dicky bird," said Grainger. "They need to hurry up."

"They've got to spend money at the ground for the move to go ahead, and there are things that need doing by March 31."

"There needs to be some new stands put in, a new entrance and things like that. It's certainly not cheap – you're talking about five figures."

"If they want to come then we've invited them, and we'll help them where we can."

However City chairman Kevin Satchell insisted he had told Grainger of the club's position. He said: "I spoke to Kevin Grainger on two occasions in January and we agreed that we would let him know in mid-February if we are going to go there or not."

Lily in the pink after MCC call

LILY Reynolds has helped make history after being named in the inaugural MCC Women's Under-19s side for their ARCH Trophy adventure in the United Arab Emirates.

The Mildenhall and Cambridgeshire cricketer is part of a 14-strong party, which is the first women's age group squad to be selected in the MCC's 226 years.

Reynolds and her teammates will compete against Durham, Devon and Essex in 50-over group matches in Dubai and Abu Dhabi when the tournament begins on Monday.

The ECB's head of women's cricket Clare Connor said: "The Under-19 Women's ARCH Trophy is a brilliant new initiative for 2013 which will give a large number of girls, including Lily, the opportunity to experience an overseas cricket tour for the first time.

"Lily had an impressive season last year and caught the attention of our talent scouts as being a high-potential player with an exciting future."
